To Every Student . . .

As we attempted to plan this yearbook, we scanned previous years annuals and a great many thoughts filled our minds. Those special phrases and tear arousing thoughts which we sometimes read, made us stop and think how quickly the years we have spent in school have gone. Thus, through the 1969 edition of the Aquila, we hope to instill in you, the reader, the idea to return to past memories and for one moment, remember the sad, happy, and surprising moments of your school days.

The "Sands of Time" is the theme of this book, if not for unification, for stimulating your thoughts. We sincerely hope that every time you see this hourglass, the picture over which it lies, or read the following quotation, you will have one pleasant memory of your days at EHS to recall.

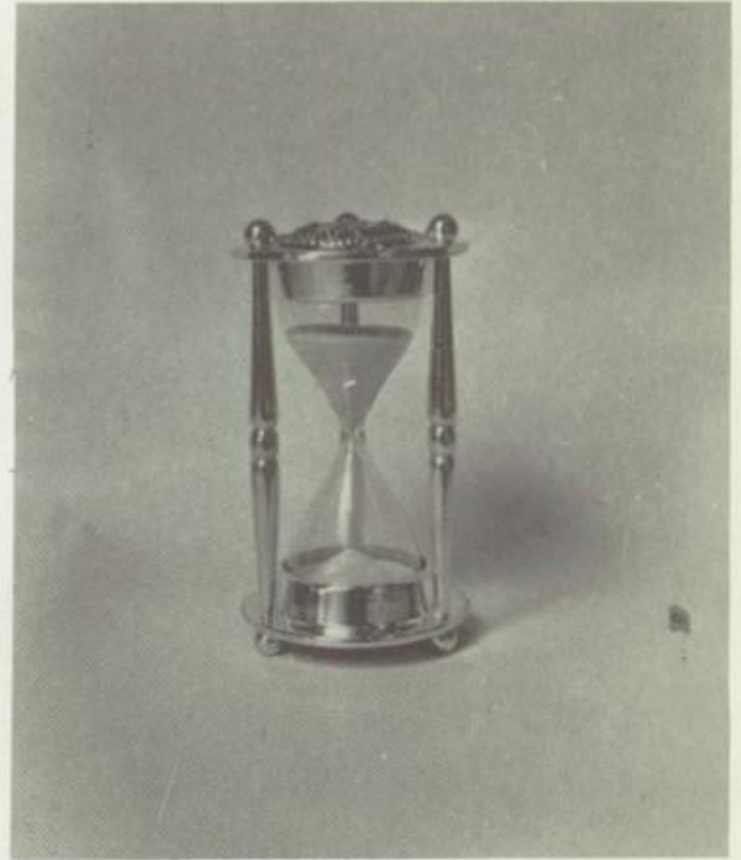

"Take my hand, I'm a stranger in paradise,
All lost in a wonderland, A stranger in paradise.

Princes come, Princes go,
An hour of pomp and show - they know;
Princes come - and over the sands
And over the sands of time - they go.

Wise men come, Ever promising -
the riddle of life to know,
Wise men come, Ah, But over the sands,
The silent sands of time - they go." **

For these reasons, we, the staff, would like to dedicate this, the 1969 Aquila, to you, the students of Eastwood, and to those students who, with the "Sands of Time," have spent remembered days at EHS.

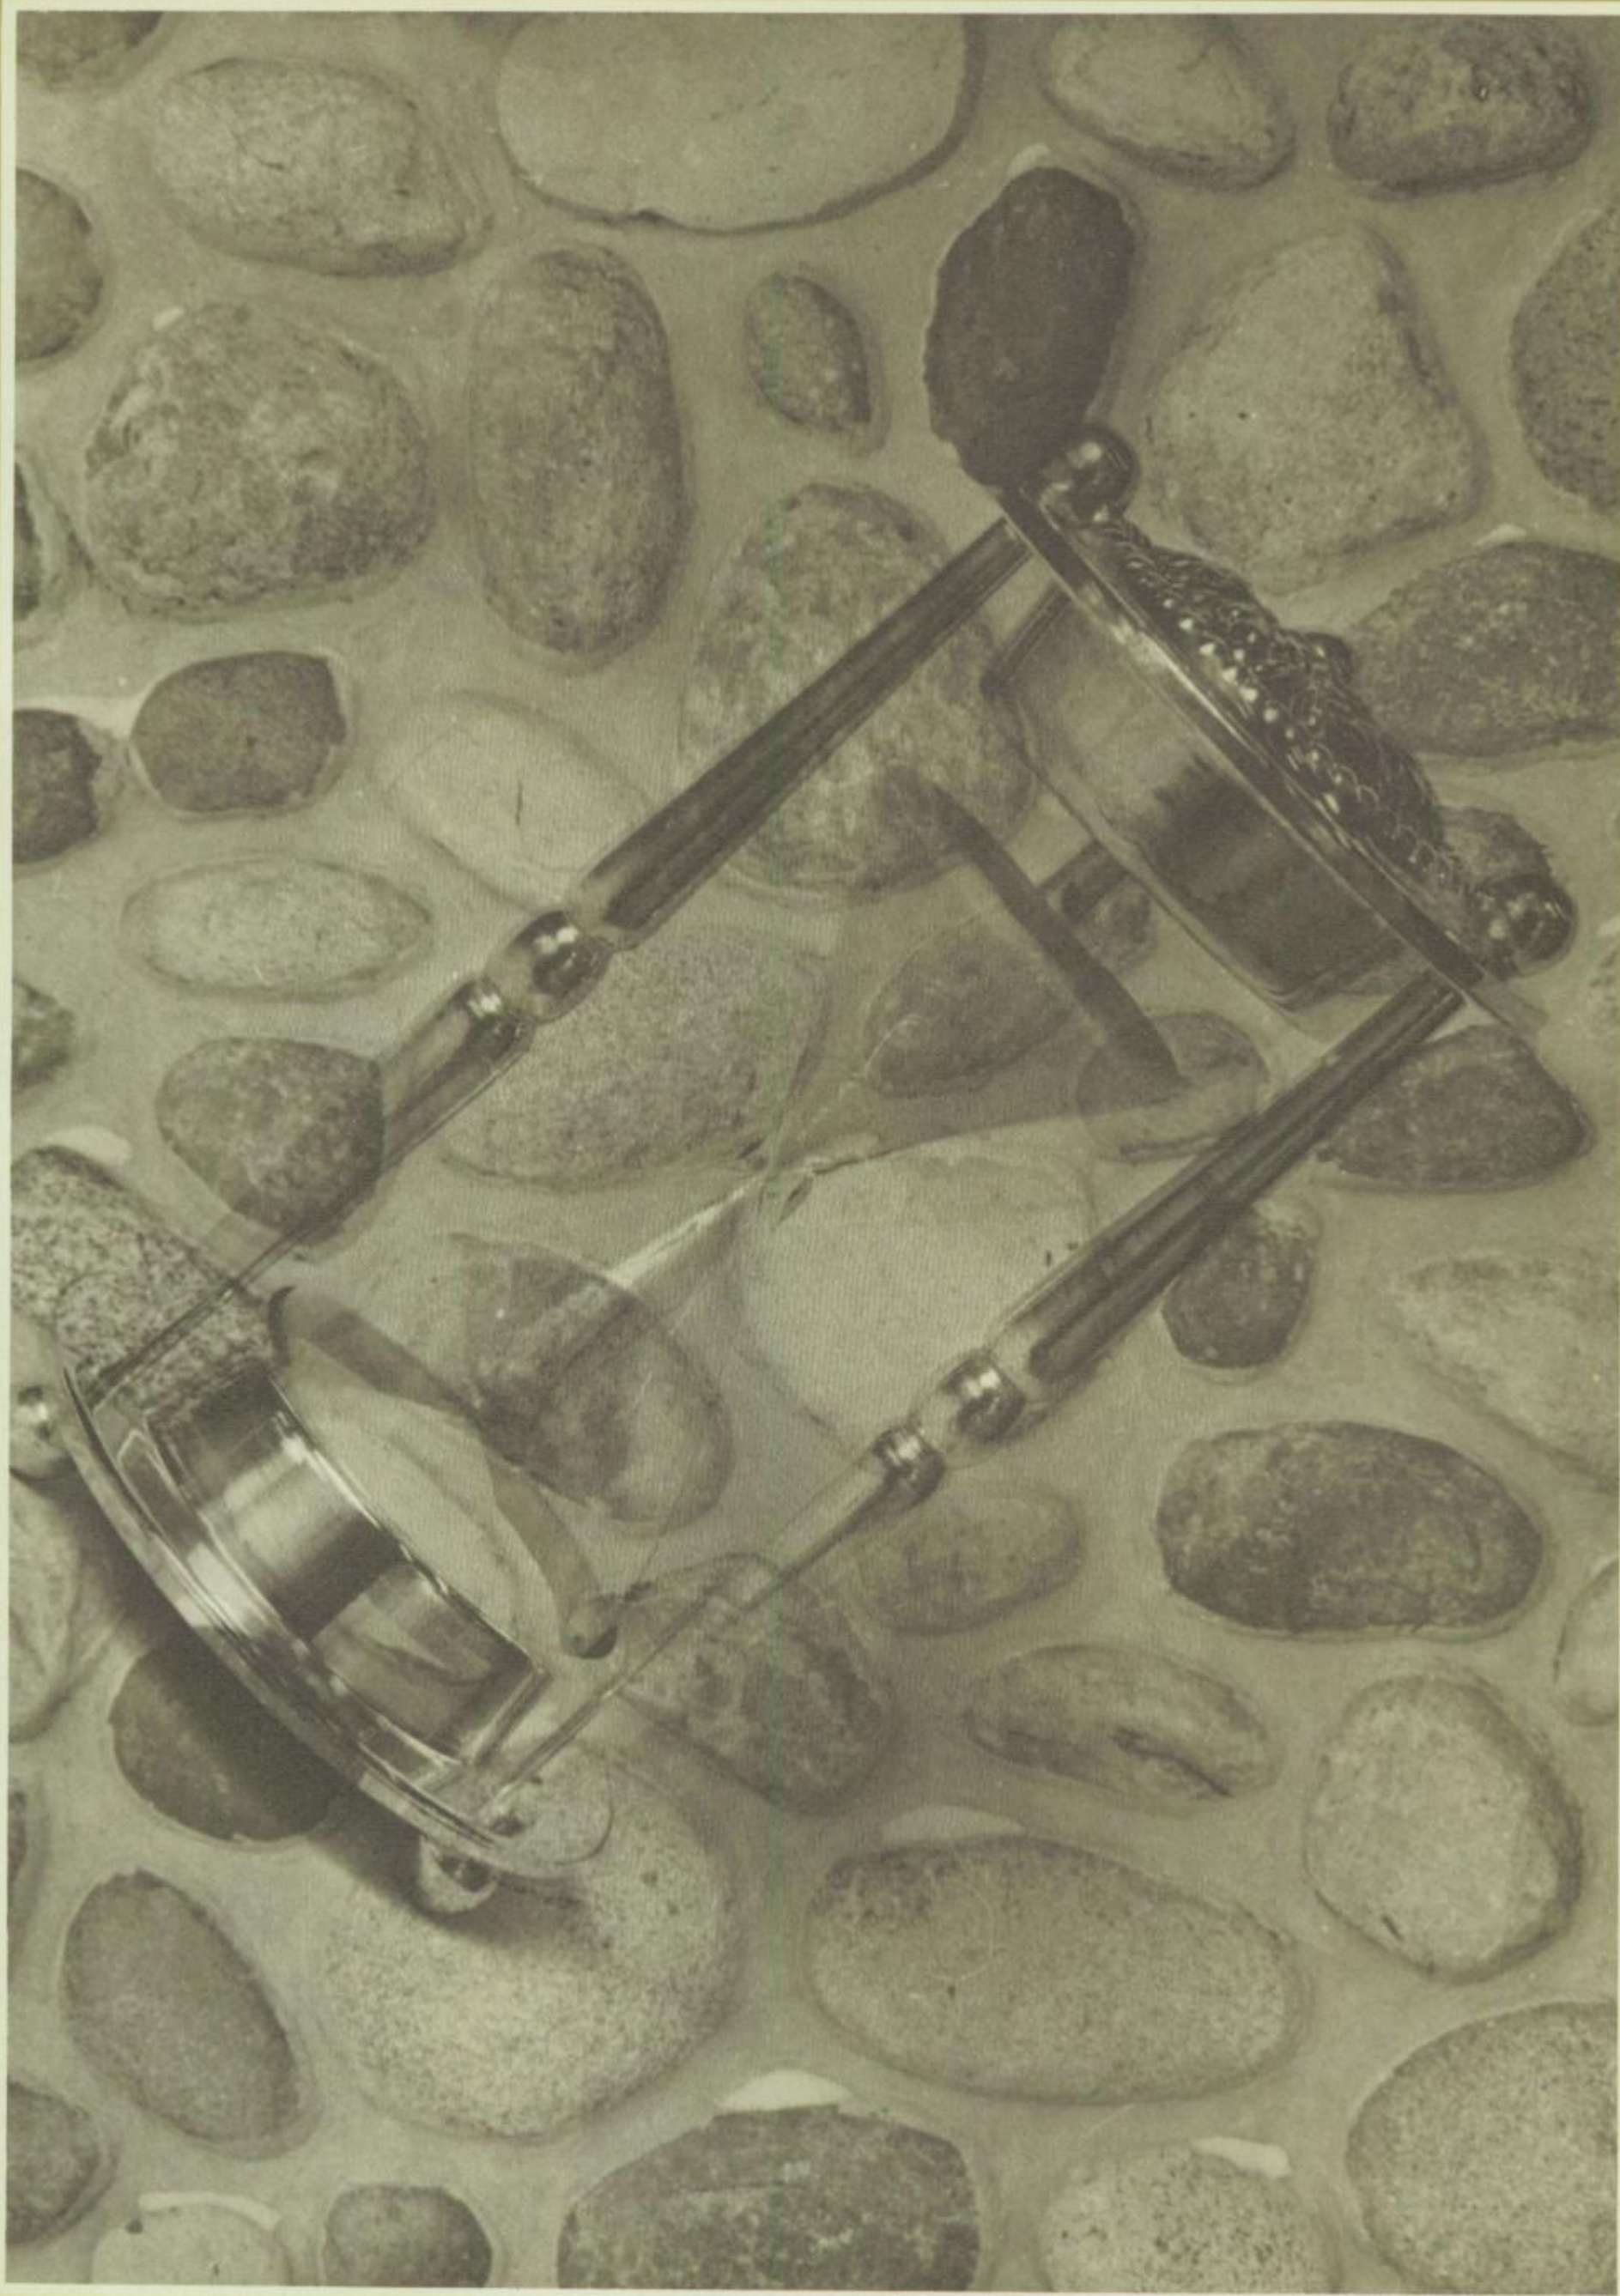

To EVERY STUDENT, past and present, we dedicate the 1969 Aquila.

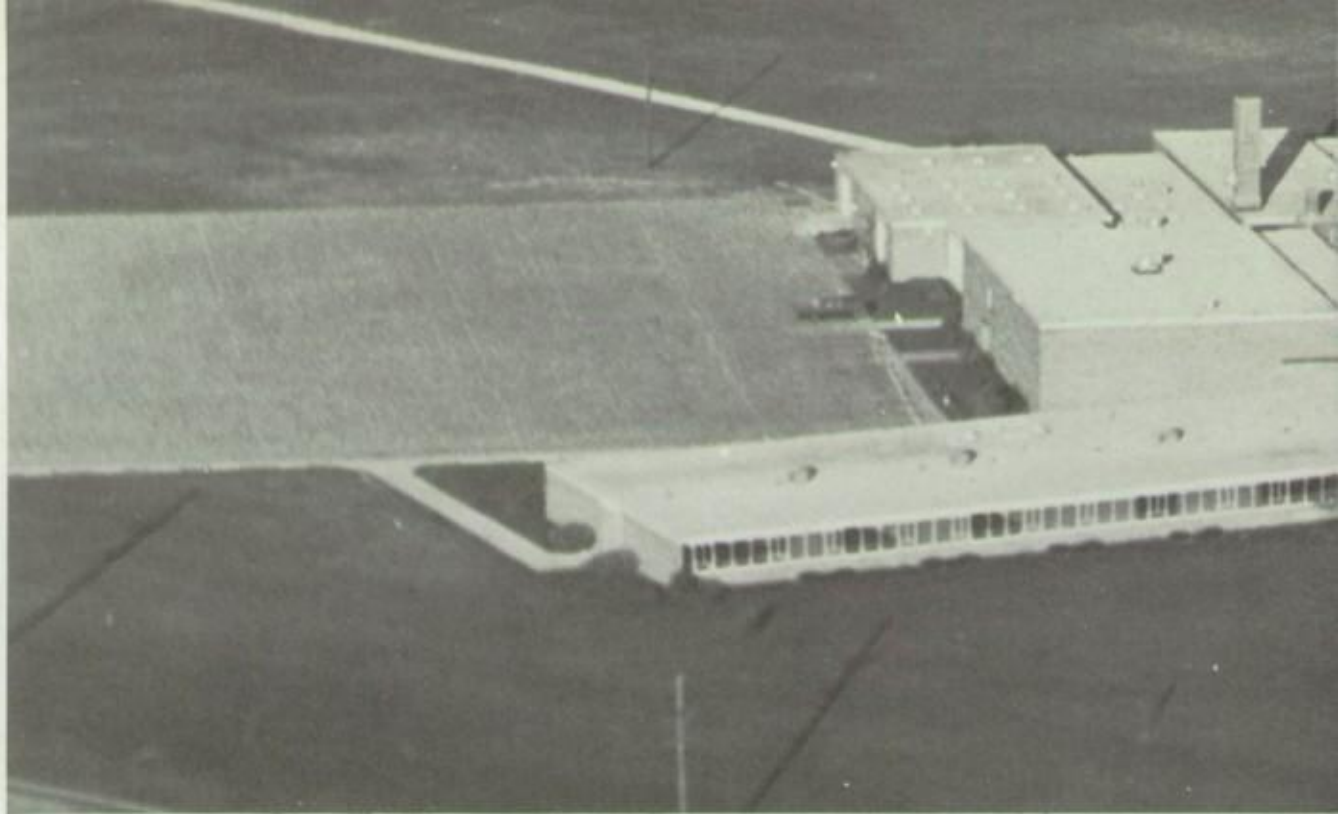

We Dedicate
The 1969 Aquila.

 Words from the selection,
"The Sands of Time" from KISMET
were written by Robert Wright and George Forrest.

Eastwood's Board of Education

The year 1968 will long be remembered as a significant step in the educational program in the Eastwood School District.

The Eastwood Board of Education remains aware that their prime purpose is to provide a rich educational experience for all boys and girls in the district. With this purpose in mind, a proposal for a building program was presented to the electorate. Again, the citizens of Eastwood have demonstrated their respect for improved education and intellectual discipline.

A great number of people responded to the educational needs in the district and worked unselfishly so that our youth could attend school in modern, well-equipped buildings. The board of education commends the Eastwood citizens who recognize that the only realistic solution to the many social and physical problems of today is a sound educational system.

Today, we are faced with new problems that force a challenge to all citizens in Eastwood and in the state of Ohio. While we must continue to meet the educational and cultural needs of our youth, a growing concern is recognized in regard to the inequalities of opportunities for the youth of this state.

The board of education, the administration, and faculty offer our sincerest congratulations to the citizens of Eastwood for your forward educational attitude and your desire to provide the best for your children. We pledge to serve this community to the best of our ability and encourage all citizens to become more active participants in their schools.

Social Studies Cognizant Of The World

Social sciences play an important role in the subjects of Eastwood High School. The subjects classified under social sciences are American History, sociology, family living, and government. American History, taught by Mr. Dale Bruning and Mr. Calvin Friend, deals with the events which helped form our nation. Sociology, taught by Mr. Dale Bruning, discusses the problems of our society while family living discusses the problems of the average family. This class is taught by Mr. Warren Tickle. Government, taught by Mr. Calvin Friend, talks about the procedures of the government of the United States.

Journalism

The first year of journalism is centered around learning the procedure of putting out the "Eagle's Eye". These students help Journalism II by typing addresses of the envelopes in which the "Eagle's Eyes" are sent out.

Journalism II students are kept busy by producing the "Eagles Eye." The members of this department write feature stories, editorials, and the latest news about what is happening at E. H. S.

This year under the capable guidance of Mr. Dennis Recker, the "Eagle's Eye" staff sends out newspapers twice monthly.

ABOVE: Journalism I class learn to assemble the "Eagle's Eye".

LEFT: C. Robinson is using the scope to print headlines on the paper.

ABOVE: K. Bockbrader, J. Pringle, T. Kirian, and K. Henline compile one of the bi-monthly issues of the school paper, which everyone looks forward to receiving.

RIGHT: K. Bockbrader prepares papers for mailing. Every family in the district receives a paper.

Art Students Work With Their Hands

In art class, the students are given the opportunity to enhance their artistic ability. The basic fundamentals of sketching, painting, and ceramics are taught in the first years of art. In more advanced years of art, the projects become more difficult and the student's abilities are relied on more fully. Everyone has a certain degree of creativity, and in art, this creativity, is developed and revealed to one-self and others.

J. Baker and L. Feasel work on their acrylic paintings.

ABOVE: M. Webb and S. Henry work on their wire sculptures.

R. Hagg and D. Lowrie mold an animal out of clay.

Home Ec. Develops Domestic Talent

RIGHT: M. Reid, B. Meyér, V. Morlock, and P. Schumacher take inventory of utensils in Home Ec.

BELOW: Some of the culinary arts at being demonstrated by B. Beier and D. Barr.

BELOW: C. Duquette and V. Morlock demonstrate the sewing skills gained in Tailoring.

BELOW: S. Young and L. Feasel show some toys which small children are especially interested in, one of the things they learn in Child Care.

In the department of Home Economics offered at Eastwood, such subdivisions as Interior Decorating, Nutrition, Tailoring, and Child Care exist in order to more fully fill the needs of students in each area. It is evident to the students at Eastwood that those girls enrolled in the Home Ec program are gaining a great deal of knowledge through the mouth-watering odors which emerge from the door of this class. Tailored outfits which are displayed in the spring of the year are further proof of the gains of the pupils enrolled in the tailoring classes.

Industrial Arts Is The Language Of Industry

The basics of carpentry are taught in the industrial arts classes. With all the materials and machinery close at hand, the students can make any of the various and useful projects they wish.

In mechanical drawing, the students learn much about planning and designing.

Much of what is learned in both industrial arts and mechanical drawing is very useful in later life.

ABOVE: J. Migliori adds the finishing touches to a checkerboard which he has constructed.

Vo-Ag Studies Farming Techniques

The boys enter a float in the Wood County Fair in 1968.

Vocational Agriculture is a class which is for students who wish to make farming their vocation. They learn better farming methods and are given the opportunity to use them on their own land. The proceeds which are obtained are sold for a profit. Vo-ag is both an educational and profitable course.

D. Martin weighs a pig which, is ready for sale.

S. Huss, T. Henline, W. Shiffert and M. Jacobs work on their reports.

T. Henline and T. Fredrich examine a newly-purchased pig.

This year's officers do a good job.

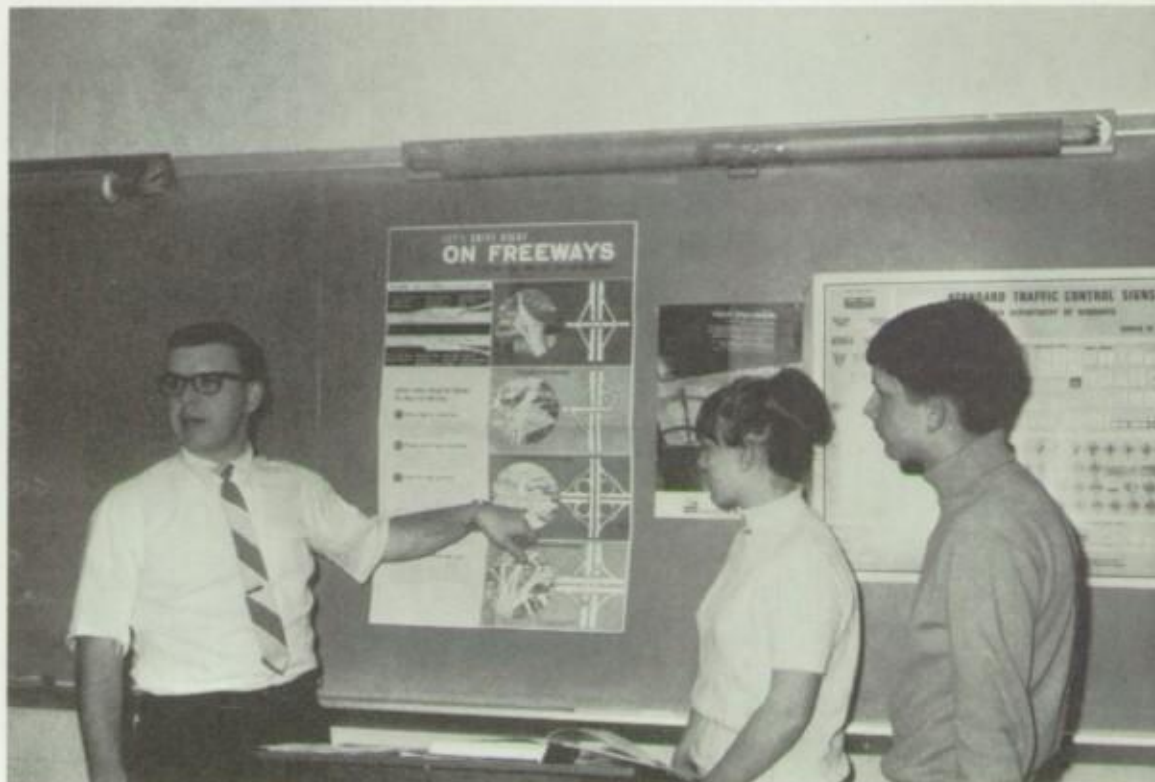

Driver's Ed. Teaches Safe Driving Skills

Driver's Education is one of the many new extracurricular courses which is presented to the students in Eastwood High School due to the passing of the new law in the state of Ohio.

There are three different high school teachers who give up their time to instruct students. These trained instructors are Mr. Fred Koester, Mr. Gary Bierly, and Mr. Keith Neiderkahr. The Driver's Education class meets one night weekly during the second semester from 7:00 to 9:00. During this time, the class learns the many rules of driving safely. On some occasions the teacher will present movies to the class on how their lives can be affected by poor driving habits. Students will not have completed the course until summer when they will spend many hours in actual driving situations, either behind the wheel themselves, or observing the driving of one of their classmates.

Three Years Of Phys. Ed. Is $\frac{3}{4}$ Credit

ABOVE: Come on LuAnn, don't play pattycake with the basketball. Go get two points!

ABOVE: Are you going to throw the ball or just stand there?

LEFT: This must be the worst set of leg cramps our class has ever had!

Physical education is one of the major requirements at Eastwood High School. The boys' phys. ed. classes are taught by Mr. Paul Rolf while the girls' classes are volleyball, basketball, hockey, archery, and baseball. By teaching the students these things, Eastwood High School hopes to point out the importance of being physically fit.

Going hand and hand with physical education is health. This course instructs the students to follow good health habits. This instruction will enable the students to be better aware of the body and its treatments.

Music Department Sounds With Melody

ABOVE: Flutes have all eyes on the director.

ABOVE: Beethoven wrote that?

ABOVE: Another of the sections which make up our mighty band.

RIGHT: Sopranos are seen working on Contest numbers.

Both vocal and instrumental music make up the Music Department at Eastwood. These two subdivisions work as a single unit to produce music for both the immediate area and those places requesting musical entertainment.

The football half-time shows, the Christmas Concerts, the musical, and the annual Pops' Concert, as well as Contest all are activities participated in by members of band and chorus. In addition, the Drill Corps and majorettes add colorful touches of precision to the "Eastwood Department Entertainment."

Students interested in extra-curricular music may take part in ensembles, Swingin' E's, Girls' Chorus, Mixed Chorus, Marching or Concert band, or Orchestra.

Business Daily Becomes More Important

BELOW: Future secretaries develop good shorthand skills.

Students preparing to enter the business world need a firm background in the techniques of business. Fundamental skills are emphasized in business courses including Typing I and II, Bookkeeping I and II, shorthand, notehand, Journalism I and II, general business, and business law. Competent teachers work hard in an effort to turn out tomorrow's better businessmen.

Spanish students listen to a recording.

Language is the key to the world of communication. At Eastwood the English and foreign Language departments work together to give each student a background of various cultures.

In German the students learn to read and write easy German.

Students learn to speak with ease in front of audiences in speech and also to use better speech habits.

Spanish students learn how to speak the language and learn about the customs of the people in Spain.

Departments Are Very Effective

By the end of one year, the French students are able to speak French fluently and can carry on conversations using what they have learned.

In Latin the pupils study the structure of the language and learn to recognize words from their Latin origin. The customs of ancient Rome are studied in detail.

All through their high school years, the students are taught correct grammar and its usage. They are given the opportunity to put this grammar to use in various forms of creative writing.

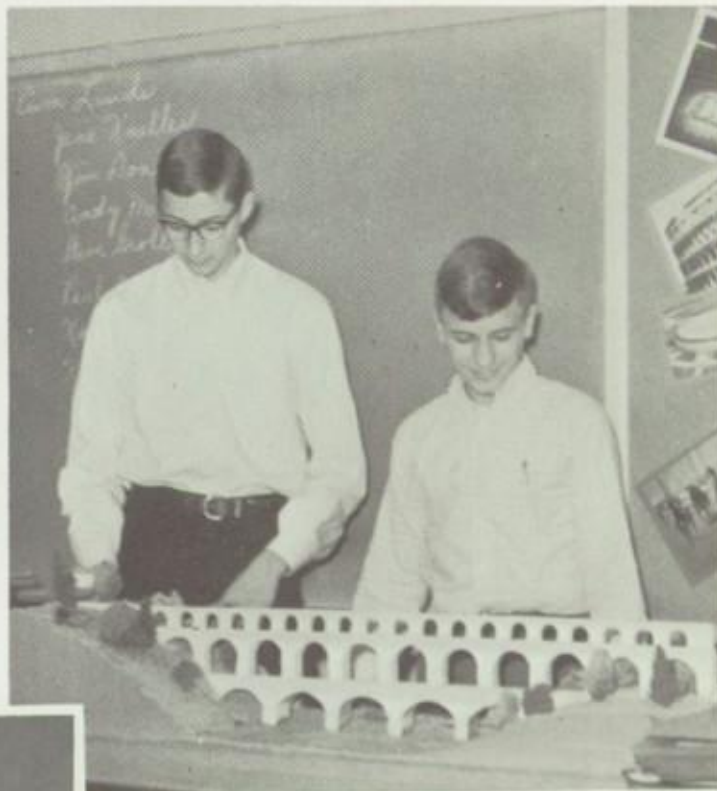

All of the above languages can prove to be very useful in later life.

B. Lawler explains part of bulletin board in French.

ABOVE: T. Speck and G. Emch examine an ancient Roman aqueduct.

Math, The Subject For The World Of Today

J. Sanchez and R. Buchman illustrate a problem in General Math.

R. Frobose points out the answer to interested on-lookers.

Students are intrigued by the unusual construction of geometrical figures.

In today's world there is the ever increasing need for more knowledge in math, therefore Eastwood gears its curriculum to help its students meet this need. Included in this curriculum are General Math I and II, which is offered for those not intending to continue their education in college. For those students who intend to continue their education Algebra I and II, trigonometry and geometry are offered. A special course, math seminar, is offered for those interested in still a higher mathematics course.

Boardwork is used as a method for checking homework.

Discovering The Mysteries Of Today

LEFT: The flow of electrons is demonstrated by C. Bockbrader and D. Huprich in Physics class.

BELOW: Biology II students study the anatomy of the human body.

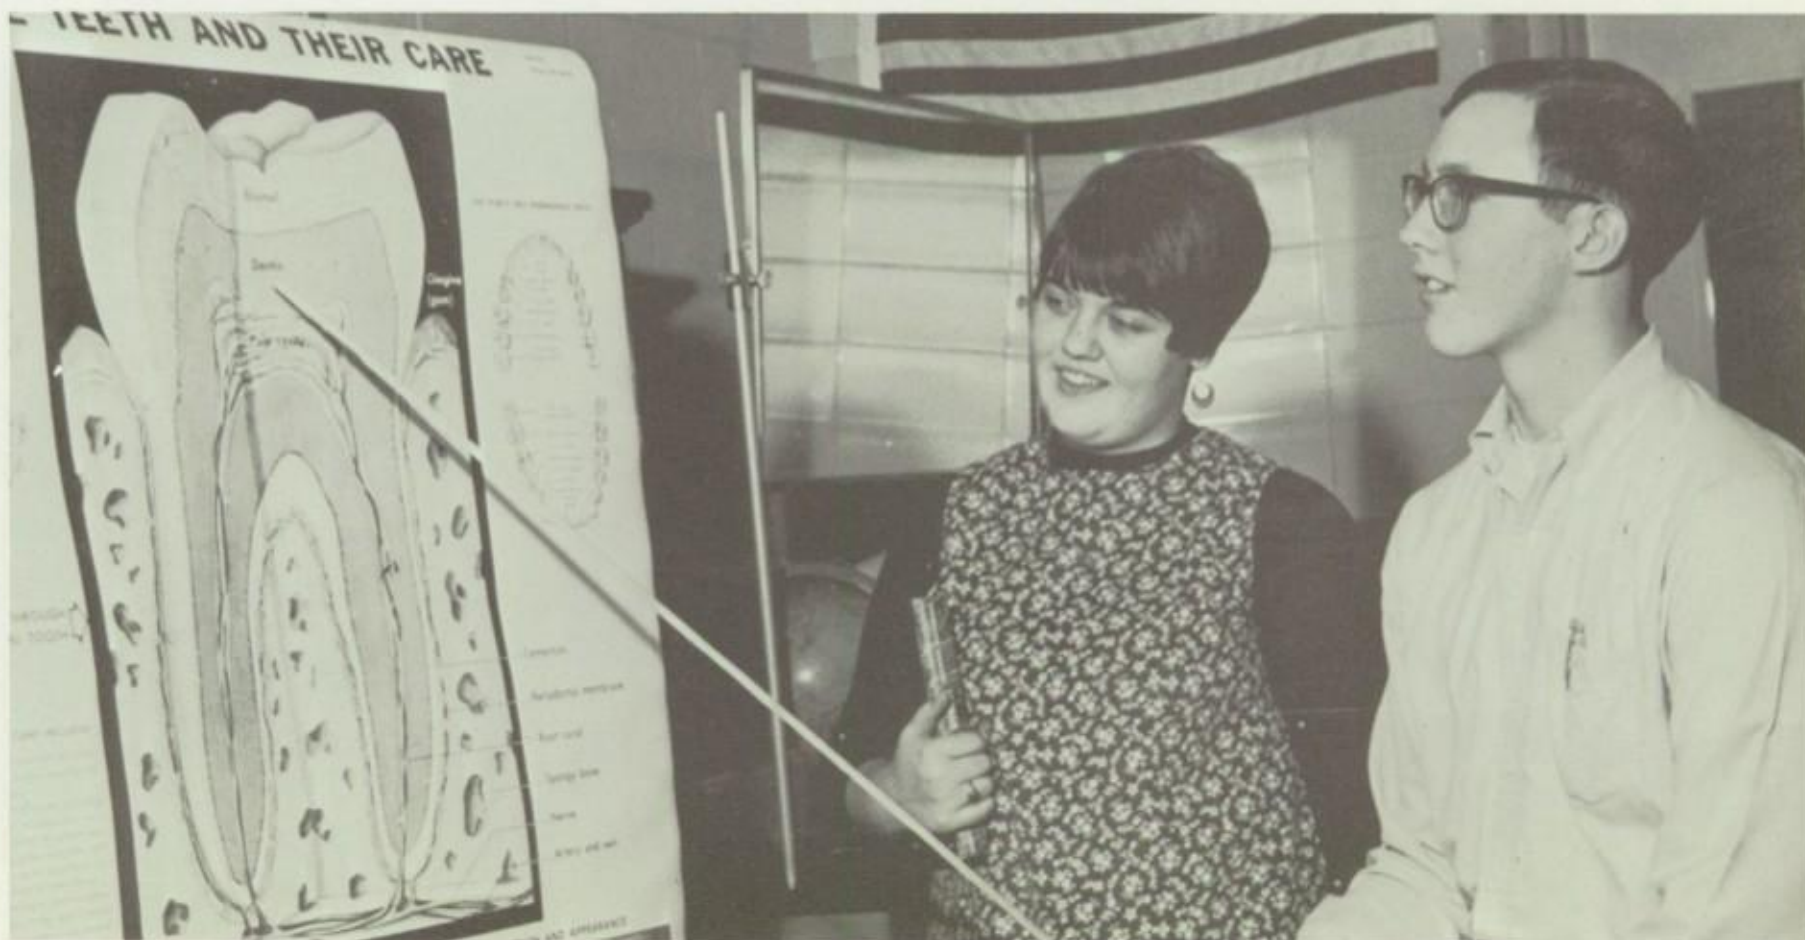

The Science Department helps the students to understand the everyday occurrences in our environment. The study of the earth's composition and living organisms is encountered in General Science and Biology I and II.

The arrangements of compounds and mixtures of elements are studied in Chemistry I and II.

Physics consists of the study of forces and how they are applied to modern times.

BELOW: D. Jewell and J. Martin discuss tooth structure in the Biology II class.

Last minute touches at dress rehearsal by Mr. Deerwester, later reveal an effective Merlin, R. Weber.

R. Smith, Pellinore, and his trusty pet make for enjoyable humor.

Scenes Of Laughter, Sorrow, Happiness, And Anger Were Vividly Portrayed.

'Wart' listens to the prayers of Guenevere in hidden silence as the first act begins.

With the continuous interruptions of 'Lance', Pellinore has a difficult time making his chess move!

The great halls of King Arthur's Court found their way to the stage of Eastwood High School on November 15, 16, and 17. Tim Meyer as King Arthur and Kathy Oehmke as Queen Guenevere played the leading roles in the musical "Camelot." Raleigh Smith, Roger Weber, and Roger Welling filled the supporting roles. The characters portrayed by these people were Pellinore, Merlyn, and Lancelot, respectively.

The developed plot is built around the dramatic change in the life of King Arthur. This change is caused by the arrival of a young woman who is to be the Queen and wife of "Wart." After the departing of Merlyn, Wart is faced with the task of thinking for himself. As time goes by, Wart is transformed into the mature and majestic King Arthur, who has to face alone the fall of all his ideas and hopes.

One of the highlights of the performance was Lancelot's, R. Welling, "C'est Moi."

And a one, and a two, and a ready - hit it!

ABOVE: "The Lusty Month of May" as portrayed by the Royal Coury. BELOW: Sir Dinadan, R. Hagg, listens to the wisdom of Merlin, the magician.

ABOVE: Sir Lancelot is dubbed a knight in the presence of Pellinore, King Arthur, Guenevere and Sir Dinadan.

As business manager for the 1969 Aquila, I extend my sincerest gratitude to the various merchants for their patronage, the staff members who helped in soliciting ads, the staff photographers for their work in making the ads, like the rest of the yearbook, a pictorial section this year, and all those who contributed time and effort in financing the Aquila. Written here is only a small token of appreciation.

Sincerely,

Diane Brinker

Diane Brinker
Business Manager

Acknowledgments

To the reader,

It must be remembered that in every work which today's world manufactures, there are a great many helping hands moving to make the result a success. This is true in the production of a yearbook, too. In order to meet deadlines, have pictures taken, and record the year's happenings to the fullest, co-ordination between staff members and book materials must be displayed. Because of the staff's dedication this year, we were able to obtain this co-ordination. To them, many thanks.

Many individuals proved very important in the production of the 1969 Aquila. Among these persons was alumnus, Ron Grolle, who kept his eyes open and found the hourglass seen on the division pages. Thanks! Also my thanks to Denny Walston for his ingenuity and long hours of work in photographing and processing pictures for our use in the book. To Mr. Lowrie, for solving our many tear-provoking problems, thank you! The faculty also deserve a big thanks for their patience in allowing us to interrupt class time to take pictures. In the same instance I would like to thank Bob Abraham from Powell Studios for his loyal contributions of pictures for our book, as well as Roger Weber and Bruce Hannan, student photographers for the staff.

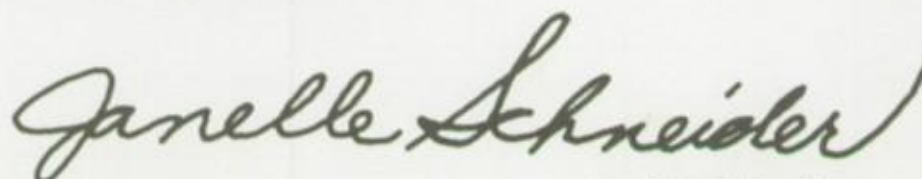

Mrs. Hagemeyer, advisor to the staff, has spent long hours with us, providing the background for our yearbook. From myself and from the remainder of the annual staff, a most hearty thanks!

Long hours spent in preparation and original ideas offered to the Aquila by Debbie Grolle, my assistant editor, will long be remembered by myself (and I hope our readers) as the originality of the 1969 Aquila. My greatest thanks to Deb!

There are numerous others who deserve much credit for the production of our book. Among them are Diane Brinker, the Business Manager, who solicited for ads and expertly handled our sales campaign; but the most heartfelt thanks is issued to you, the readers, the people who make this book a reality. To you, I extend my greatest words of appreciation. Many thanks! It is sincerely hoped you will enjoy the contents of this book.

I would like to add that it has been a pleasure and a truly worthwhile experience serving in the editorship of the Aquila. My best wishes to those who fill the position in years to come. May you benefit from your duties as I have benefited from mine.

Respectfully,

Janelle Schneider
Editor-in-Chief
1969 Aquila
